CCWC Writers Group Guidelines

Group members must be members of the Cape Cod Writers Center.

Members must be committed to improvement in the art and craft of writing.

Members are expected to give and receive honest, constructive feedback in a respectful and supportive manner.

Members make a commitment to each other to attend whether or not they are being reviewed.

CCWC recognizes group differences. Variables include number of members, continuity of group membership, frequency of meetings, type of work being critiqued, and experience level of members. Within the broad guidelines provided by the CCWC, each group will determine the protocols for submitting and reviewing work that are most beneficial to their members.
